The story of the Chinaman is, that as he was passing the Clift House on the 25th of last month, the gang made a concerted assault upon him without any provocation whatever and benised thin pp in a shameful manner. One of the boys struck him on the head with his kit, another with a rock, and the rest with their lists. He was knocked almost senseless, and did not know much about how the affair ended, but he remembers that a hackman called for the police, and that the boys all ran away.

The prosecution has evidently got evidence on hand to convict the whole mol, and to incure a pretty severe punishment for all of them.
